

Report : German Class

This report provides a concise summary of the German class arranged and conducted in 2022-23 by the Science and Arts department . The class aimed to introduce and enhance students knowledge of the German language . The report highlights the key aspects of the class, including the curriculum, teaching methods, student participation, and overall outcomes.

Curriculum:

The German class followed a structured curriculum designed to introduce students to the basics of the German language.

Syllabus - All basics which includes alphabets, days of the week, numbers, parts of the speech, vocabulary, time, clothes, weather, reading comprehensions, self - introduction, emails.

Teaching Methods:

The teaching methods employed during the German class were interactive and engaging. The instructor utilized a combination of lectures, group discussions, role-plays, multimedia resources, and language games to create an immersive learning experience. These methods aimed to promote active participation, encourage speaking practice, and enhance comprehension skills.

Student Participation:

Krishna Menon , our student from SYBMS was the tutor for one online and one offline batch of German Class. In all there were 10 students who registered.

The students actively participated in the German class, demonstrating enthusiasm and dedication to learning the language. They eagerly engaged in classroom activities, asked questions, and actively practiced speaking and writing in German. The instructor encouraged a supportive and collaborative environment, which fostered student confidence and language development.

Outcomes:

The German class achieved several positive outcomes. Students exhibited improvement in their understanding of German vocabulary, grammar, and pronunciation. They developed basic conversational skills, enabling them to engage in simple dialogues and express their thoughts in German.

Conclusion:

The German class provided a valuable learning experience for the students, equipping them with foundational knowledge of the German language and culture. The interactive teaching methods and active student participation contributed to the overall success of the class. Students' progress in vocabulary, grammar, and conversational skills demonstrated the effectiveness of the curriculum. The German class facilitated an environment conducive to language learning and cultural exploration, fostering a deeper appreciation for the German-speaking world.

Mrs. Anjaneeka Uday Chettiar

Vice Principal and German Course Coordinator

